Case Study

Park Life

The Few's solution

We provided an awesome and imposing 14m high, 30m x 50m Igloo structure with one round end and one gable.

With the ability to support 1455kgs on each of the nine arches, the crew were able to place AV production equipment exactly where they needed it.

Above the stage, the roof was covered with Silver PVC external and Black PVC internal, with the section above the audience covered in clear PVC. This was to ensure the right environment inside the structure.

The artificial woodland decor inside the Palm House was the most aesthetically ambitious of any stage at the festival and the audience was able to enjoy the music in a comfortable 900m² covered area.

With sets from Bicep, Helena Hauff and many others, The Igloo made a perfect environment for festival-goers, providing great acoustics and shelter from the typically British summer weather, it was jam packed for the whole weekend.

For the VIP area we built a 10m x 20m premium marquee on a 3m leg with glass walls and doors, plus a clear PVC roof and gables. The open terrace gave the guests a great view of the festival site.
